

THE SCHMIDT BROTHERS®

Acacian Cutlery Collection

Exclusively for west elm, the New York-based Schmidt Brothers crafted pure, simple knives with serious chops, from the heft of the handles to the precision of the blades.

8" CHEF'S KNIFE
A cook's secret weapon, with a curved blade for chopping vegetables or carving meat.

7.5" SANTOKU KNIFE
The Japanese version of a chef's knife, but straighter and lighter.

6" BONING KNIFE
Tough guy. A thin, flexible blade debones fish, chicken and meat in a flash.

5" UTILITY KNIFE
A jack of all trades. For slicing deli meat, broccoli and carrots.

4" PARING KNIFE
The plain edge is ideal for coring fruits and vegetables or deveining shrimp.

SET OF SIX 4.5" STEAK KNIVES
An easy initial slice, with a straight edge for clean follow-through.

A.

UNIVERSAL STORAGE
Holds up to 16 knives of all shapes.

8" BREAD KNIFE
Serrated teeth make it easy to slice through thick, crusty bread.

5.5" TOMATO/BAGEL KNIFE
The cutting edge. Pierces through tomatoes without creating any mushy soft spots.

Leek + Two-Pea Frittata

A dish with three-meal-a-day potential. Serve this simple oven-baked frittata from food editor and stylist Maggie Ruggiero straight out of the oven for breakfast (see it in the baking dish on page 37). For lunch, serve it on a crusty sourdough, then later, plated with greens for dinner on the couch.

- 10 large eggs
- 14 ounces mascarpone
- 1/2 cup heavy cream
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan
- 1/2 cup fresh peas, blanched
- 1 medium leek, sliced 1/4-inch thick and blanched
- 1/2 pound snap peas, blanched and halved
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

- 1 Preheat oven to 350°F. Stir together eggs, mascarpone, cream and Parmesan. Season with salt and pepper. Pour into a lightly oiled 1-1/2-to-2 quart baking dish. Sprinkle with vegetables, reserving a handful.
- 2 Bake 15 minutes. Turn oven down to 325°F, and sprinkle top with remaining vegetables.
- 3 Bake until lightly browned and just firm, about 15 to 25 minutes longer. Cool and serve.

WE LOVE® little devileds

There's more to Easter brunch than just chocolate bunnies, so we went to craft and party blogger Brett Bara of Manhattan Craft Room (brettbara.com) for recipe ideas. To see Brett's dozen deviled eggs (including her wasabi and kimchi-spiked riff), go to westelm.com.

C.

D.

E.

Brett Bara's Purple Deviled Eggs

- 12 peeled, hard-boiled eggs
- the juice from a jar of store-bought beets
- 1/2 cup mayo
- 2 tsp dijon mustard
- 2 tsp crumbled blue cheese
- salt + pepper to taste
- paprika to taste
- 1 one-gallon plastic storage bag

1 Soak hard-boiled eggs in beet juice for 30 minutes. Remove and drain, then slice the eggs in half and gently remove yolks. Combine yolks in a bowl with mayo, mustard and blue cheese, then stir until mixture is smooth.

2 Scoop the mixture into the plastic bag, then snip off a bottom corner and pipe the spiced yolks into the whites.

3 Sprinkle the eggs with paprika and garnish each one with a thin slice of beet.

CENTER OF ATTENTION
 Sweetness springs eternal thanks to this papier-mâché centerpiece, which is pretty and practical enough to bloom year-round.

HANDMADE IN HAITI

As part of our collaboration with Aid to Artisans (we're the nonprofit's biggest retail partner), we worked with craftspeople from Port-au-Prince to create papier-mâché accents that are perfect for the Easter brunch table—or whenever the mood strikes.

BUNNY HOP EASTER BRUNCH

Get cracking—it's time to set the table with party plates and baskets filled with jellybeans. These playful collage patterns add a layer of fun to each place setting, any time of year.
