Furniture-making is a craft. From the sculpting of a sofa frame to the folding of fabric, it's a process you can't just teach a machine to do. The woodworkers, upholsterers and sewers who build our sofas and chairs construct furniture much like it was made 100 years ago—by hand, from scratch, with care.

HANDS ON

An upholsterer at west elm's North Carolina workshop stretches fabric over a frame by hand.

Meet the furniture makers who create some of your favorite west elm pieces in our behind-the-scenes video at westelm.com.

HOME BASE
The seat of American furniture-making for more than a century, Hickory, North Carolina is home to Sutter Street, one of west elm's own manufacturing workshops.

GOING STRONG
Each piece of furniture begins with a frame built from kiln-dried solid wood for maximum strength and stability.

THE TASK AT HAND
Our skilled woodworkers, upholsterers and sewers take great pride in crafting pieces by hand. Hear from the craftspeople at Sutter Street in our behind-the-scenes video at westelm.com.

The Dunham Sofa

The details make the Dunham. A sophisticated profile; tailored welting along every edge; a deep, bench-style seat and premium down-filled cushions come together for a sofa that feels as lavish as it looks.

TOUGH GUY
A rough-hewn granite top, raw ash legs and tall profile add up to a side table with rugged presence.

B.

CLEAN LIVING
The Dunham's high, tuxedo-style arms and welted rails and cushions give it a tailored look.

ANIMAL ATTRACTION
Our collaborator, renowned South African furniture maker John Vogel, modeled the horn-shaped backrest of this solid-wood chair on the antlers of African Nguni cattle.

PRO LEAGUE
Many of our master upholsterers come from generations of furniture-making families, bringing years of experience and skill to their craft.

MORE THAN A FEELING
From pebbly linen blends and rich performance velvets to gorgeous prints, our special order upholstery program gives you 30+ fabric options.

STEELY RESOLVE
To make our furniture, we use sinuous springs made from high-gauge steel to balance resiliency and firmness in the seat and back.

STABLE CONDITIONS
All of west elm's upholstered furniture is glued, screwed, stapled, reinforced with double-dowel joints and corner-blocked with wooden braces for maximum support and stability.

The Bliss Sofa

Our favorite place for a nap. The deep, single-seat cushion is the perfect place to kick your feet up, and flanged seams keep the down-wrapped pillows looking clean-lined and comfy. Get a closer look at every detail at westelm.com.

SUPPORTING ROLE Our sofa and chair cushions are made with high-density, high-resiliency foam to hit the sweet spot of long-lasting support and comfort you can sink into.

ON A ROLL

On the mill floor in Fall River, our new Kenmare upholstery fabric is carefully guided by skilled printers through these giant rotary screen presses into rolls weighing half a ton apiece. We print over 3,000 yards of upholstery fabric a year in this Massachusetts town, which is steeped in generations of American textile heritage.

from fabric to finish

Fabric printing isn't a science—it's an art. Our new zigzag Kenmare pattern is printed by our textiles supplier, Braemore, at Swan Dyeing and Printing in Fall River, Massachusetts—a town rich in American textile heritage and home to one of the finest mills around. Here, skilled workers combine state-of-the-art capabilities with old-fashioned know-how.
